Whoever thinks he has a soul above small-beer, may profitably try a few months of outport life; from which he will return a wiser and less complacent man. The mind inevitably shrinks to its environment ; and this, indeed, I hold to be one of the kindlest laws of our the full text of President Harrison's message to nature. Insensibly, almost unawares, you grow interested in a score of matters which at first occasioned only annoyance and contempt. In Chins, as elsewhere, vivre au grand knows exactly what you had for dinner the night before last, and who were the guests that helped you to eat it; whether the champagne was properly iced; whether Geelong bored the company with that kangaroo-hunting yarn his ; and whether Madame de Rossignol sang that pretty Italian song you admire so much. Whatever you say and do, and a great deal more, becomes public property; and is canvassed with that delightful frankness and impartiality found among familiar friends. The more so, that their faculties are sharpened by suspicion. For suspicion is the baleful atmesphere in which all things move and have their being an atmosphere enhaled out of the petty struggle, the thwarted hopes, the narrowed life, the enforced idleness of a decaying port. Permeating everywhere, drawn in with every breath, it sours the joys of existence, and in time poisons the sweetest blood. It is, in a chronic and mitigated form, much the same feeling as injects the minds of shipwrecked men who eye one another over the daily shrinking store of food and water, Every man seems on the watch for an insult or an infringement of his rights. Each treats his friend us if he were one day to become an enemy. "Have you got him in black and white?" is the universal query. THE BRITISH ELECTIONS.

MR. GLADSTONE'S PLATFORM.

The election address of the leader of the Opposition was issued on June 24th. Briefly summarised, it says that Great Britain and Ireland will now decide whether the three counas in statute, the United Kingdom. WHAT PRICE JUSTICE?

Under the head-line "The Sale of Justice" the San Francisco Bulletin editorially refers to colony and a goodly few who are now bappily "absent" for good, we see no reason to apologise for reproducing our contemporary's article in "When, a few months ago, two men were convicted in this city and sent to the Penitentiary for jury bribery, it was thought by many that this evil had been cut up by the roots. But the two individuals convicted represented a class. It can never be known how large it is, because the effence is hedged in with every secret device. four is the motto of little places Everybody. It is difficult to obtain enough evidence to secure a conviction. Even when the offence is known and parties have been approached, the proposals may be so obscure that legal proof would be lacking for a conviction. In other instances individuals who have knowledge of attempts at july-bribing, hestitate to make complaints. requires a great deal of course to proceed against an offender of this kind. Cfficers may be willing to do their whole duty, but they must have competent witnesses.

instance of jury-bribing, or an attempt in that | man in your own mit of clothes. Otherwise act on direction, owes it to the community to lend a your own good judgment, and on the reputation of a hand in bringing the offender to account. No remedy which has such evidence to prove its powergreater calamity can befall a community than to | [Advi. have justice corrupted at its very source. Occasionally an undertone is heard that has in ta meaning. The suspicious element in the jury-box is suggested. How did this and that man get there? Who, desiring only justice. would want a case determined by such men? Attimes there is so much public watchfulness that juries are selected from men of high character. Looking over the panel not a single individual is there who does not stand well in the community. When the public ceases to be watchful, then complaints are heard. The results give force to the old proverb that eternal vigilance is the price

"Even the auspicion that such a crime as jurybibling is possible, is a calamity. But when the facts come out to make good the suspicion, then the evil has culminated. During the past four years a larger volume of business than formerly has been transacted in the courts without the intervention of juries. Many prominent lawyers will go nearly a year without calling for the services of a jury. In short, they dispense with it "In the instance of attempted jury-bribery crystallies into eccentricity. The Kipling of there could be no chance for the jury-broker to to have business. Some of them are so well have run across these brokers. They have the best opportunities for uncovering the tracks of these men. As officers of the court, it is their duty to make public every instance of this kind that comes within their knowledge. When hree or four corrept men can be found in a tingle pinel, or even one who has his price, it is time to surch for a possible evil of far greater magnitude. Courts offestice can only be purged of these rascals by following up every case and every clew until the suspicion of jury-bribing is effect from the community. Courts are established to do justice between man and man. The most upright Judge in the world can never be certain that suitors get justice when venal men get into the panel. The judicial atmosphere about the City Hall would be greatly cleared by sending balf a dozen of the worst jury-brokers to the Penlientlary."

In Hongkong we know of no actual "jurybroken," but from a lengthened and varied experience we have found that it is an absolute impossibility to get a jury free from personal prejudices for or against some of the parties concerned in a trial, except in the simplest Chinese case : and in a small community like this, trial by jury is a wretched failure, wherever Europeans are interested.

> "NEVER MIND THE MAN IN THE MOON."

Don's worry your brain about the man in the moon, but study the man is your own suit of clothes. If every individual person took the best possible ere of himself, institutions of charity would soon go out of fashion. There's a deal of sonso in the saying that "Charity bogins at home." When a man has got to swim or drown, he will at least make a laudable effort to swim. " Perhaps we coddle one another too much. As in an army, so in society-we depend individually upon the commander and the multitude. It's a bad thing, because it induces a man to trust to luck and to numbers and not to his own courage and wits. Consequently, when trouble comes, it finds us not resty : ignorant how to fight and conquer it.

For example, here is our good friend, Mr. John Wilkinson, of Norbury, Whitehurch, Salop, who not long ago said to an acquaintance : " Lad, I am done for." Why did he think so? Because the doctors had given him up to disof consumption. Enough to scare him if he really had consumption. But did he?

.Ah, that is the question. He tells his story thus: "I come," he says, "of a strong, healthy family, and up to the spring of 1885 1 was always well. I could lift, run, and jump with any one, and walk thirty miles a day with case. About April of that year I felt something coming over me which gradually fastened upon me. At first I felt dull, heavy, and tired, with a sinking all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach, and pain in the side and between the shoulder-blades. My skin grew sallow, and the whites of my eyes were tinged with a yellow colour. I had a foul taste in the mouth. particularly in the morning. My mouth and teeth were covered with a thick slime, and a thin watery fluid came up from my stomach " into my mouth."

"Myappetite failed, and what little food I managed to cat gave me great pain. I had a tight feeling at my chest and round both sides as if I was held in a vice, and I got weaker and weaker and very low in spirits. There seemed to be no life or soul left in me. "By-and-by I begin to have a hacking cough, which made me lose a deal of sleep. Indeed, I could not rest at night on account of it. I would lie awateall night long oughing and spitting. As time went on I became so reduced I could scarcely get about. When I did venture outdoors I had to be constantly stopping to rest as I walked slong the lanes, for fear of falling.

"Firled all kinds of medicines, and was under the doctor, but without getting relief. In this miserable way I dragged on for six months. All my friends and reighbours thought I was breaking up, and was not long for this world. "One day a friend of mine. Mr. Thomas Bateman gameteeper, Marbury, seeing me so had, asked me how my complaint came on. I replied : I am done for; I shall never got well again, lad."

"Then he said, ! Don't say that until after you have tried Mother Seigel's Oprative Syrup.' And he went on to tell me how this medicine had tured him after he was at death's door, and given up by the doctors as being in a consumption. So, to leave nothing unders, I sent to Whitchurch and bought the remedy. After taking three bettles all pain and sickness to me; I could cat snything, and the cough and the spitting, as well as the pain in the chest, left me, and I was a well man.

"I tell everybody how Mother Seigel's Syrup saved my life; and you are at liberty to publish my statement in order that other sufferers may know what to do. (Signed) "JOHN WILKINSON, Shoemaker,

"Norbury, Whitchurch, Salop," The cases of these two men, Bateman and Wilkinson, were almost identical in symptoms and chirecter. Both had indigestion and dyspepsis, both apprehended consumption, and both were happily oured by the same medicine. How many others, situated as they were, are there in this country ! Hundreds of thousands ! Ah, the dreary, dreadful days they have to pas through, right on the road to the grave, for unhelped they must surely die !

Are you, who reed these lines, one of this suffering multitude? or do you know any one who belongs to it! We say but a word to you-don't expect to get But every citizen who knows of a single wall through walting and vaguely hoping. Study the

FINEST HOTEL IN THE EAST.

(Under the distinguished paironage of the Imperial Household.) THIS fine hotel is situated within five minutes' drive of the terminus of the livokohama-Tokyo . Railway and is in near proximity to the Imperial Palace, the Parliament House and the Chief Public Offices.

There are no inside rooms, thus securing well lighted, yentilated, and cheerful accommodations. The Cuisine cannot be surpassed, and the aim of the management is to provide for the comfort and pleasure of the guests. The attractions of Tokio are countless, and the religious and floral festivals being of daily occurrence are to be seen at their best and on a grander scale than in any other portion of Japan. All the noted actors, wrestlers and jugglers make the capital their head-quarters.
